GOLDLEAF CERTIFIES EPSON CHECK SCANNER FOR REMOTE DEPOSIT EXPRESS SOLUTION

Orlando, FL, November 18, 2008 – Epson, a leading supplier of value-added banking and payment hardware solutions, today announced that Goldleaf Financial Solutions, Inc., a provider of integrated technology-based solutions designed to improve the performance of financial institutions, has certified the Epson CaptureOne™ check scanner for its Remote Deposit Express application, a Web-based, remote deposit capture (RDC) solution that allows business customers to submit deposits electronically from the convenience of their own business locations. By supporting CaptureOne with its Remote Deposit Express Solution, Goldleaf offers financial and commercial customers highly-reliable RDC scanning solutions that streamline operations, reduce check processing costs and improve overall productivity.

“Remote Deposit Express has been deployed in more than 7,500 businesses through our financial institution partners,” commented Lynn Boggs, CEO of Goldleaf. “CaptureOne is a natural fit with its high reliability, and excellent MICR accuracy.”

“Next year the Federal Reserve plans to increase processing fees for paper checks by 41 percent while electronic payments fees will only increase by two percent,” said Bud Weist, vice president of sales and marketing, Epson System Device Group. “In the face of increasing check costs, financial institutions looking to invest in cost-cutting RDC solutions have a solid, industry-leading choice in Goldleaf’s Remote Deposit Express with CaptureOne.”
